

ACCOUNTABILITY APP USER'S GUIDE 2021

It's pretty hard to imagine our world today without the Internet. For most Americans, the Internet has fundamentally changed the way we work, live, and socialize. We have access to more information than any previous generation.

The challenge is using the Internet responsibly, and, more importantly, to train the next generation to do the same.

FILTERING VS. ACCOUNTABILITY

Sometimes these terms are interchanged or confused, but filtering and accountability are really two different things.

- Filtering is a process that restricts access to specific locations on the Internet, based on content.
- Accountability is reporting to someone else your online actions and behaviors.

Both are important and should be a part of any Internet use plan.

The most important concept to understand (especially for parents) is that responsible Internet use is a choice. With an average of 140,000 new web pages added to the Internet every day, it is impossible for filters to always be current on the content of every site.

Accountability apps only work if we use them. The simplest way to get around an accountability app is to simply use a device without one (i.e., a friend's phone, library computer, work computer). The goal is not about locking down the Internet, but setting healthy boundaries and advocating the benefits of responsible Internet use to our family and group members.

FILTERING

The good news about filters is that the best ones are free! We recommend Google SafeSearch and OpenDNS.

Signing up for Google SafeSearch:

- You will need a Google account. If you don't have one, visit <https://accounts.google.com/SignUp>.
- Log in to your Google account and visit <http://www.google.com/preferences>.
- Turn on SafeSearch.

Signing up for OpenDNS:

- Go to <https://www.opendns.com/home-internet-security/>.
- Under the Parental Controls, select "Get Started" and follow the account set-up instructions.
